The European Committee of the Regions (CoR) is organizing local debates in regions and cities all over Europe with the aim to involve citizens in the debate on the future of Europe. The outcomes from these debates will feed into the contribution of the CoR into the Conference on the future of Europe. One of the important themes of the future of Europe is cross-border cooperation. The CoR has adopted a declaration on this topic in which it puts forward its recommendations. Young people (students from Czechia and Poland) will have a chance to voice their views both in general as well as concretely towards the Euroregion in which they live. They will be able to contribute to the strategy of the Euroregion. Also the effect of the COVID crisis on the cross-border cooperation will be discussed and the lessons for the future will be identified.
