Dear Vasco, Dear Colleagues,

Our Annual Report on the State of Regions and Cities is rich, once more,

of findings and considerations.

Reacting to those, I wish to focus on 3 main issues.

Firstly, on Ukraine's reconstruction:

The European Commission President spoke extensively on the war in her State of the Union Address.

I regret that the important role of local and regional governance was not reflected in her speech.

In Europe, mayors and regional leaders were at the forefront sheltering refugees and sending humanitarian aid.

In Ukraine, mayors made the difference in protecting their own citizens, and will be pivotal in the reconstruction of their cities and villages.

Moreover, in the reconstruction of Ukraine, the State of the Union missed providing details on how to finance it.

We only heard of a pledge to help reconstruct Ukrainian schools with 100 million Euros support, which is a great initiative, but the role of European cities and regions was again omitted, despite the fact that they could make the difference by sharing their know-how on urban and spatial planning, and by helping the Mayors of Ukraine in implementing the reforms, and manage the funds that cities and regions of Ukraine will be receiving in order to secure the reconstruction, and the future accession to the EU.

Secondly, on the implementation of the Conference on the Future of Europe's recommendations.
The Conference on the Future of Europe has shown a seed of innovation in European democracy, and it is now time to follow up on its proposals.

I believe citizens' panels should become permanent, as well as participatory democracy shall accompany representative democracy in the EU's deliberations.
But, again,

if we want these tools to be successful and meaningful,

and become a regular feature of EU democratic life, regional and local authorities must be fully involved, as they are ideally positioned to serve as laboratories and sources of democratic innovation.

Our full involvement will help in bringing the EU closer to citizens, something the European Commission seems to forget.

Thirdly, on cohesion:

If we welcome the positive role played by Cohesion in making a difference by tackling - on the ground – the aftermath of the recent crisis, we must also make it clear today that Cohesion policy must not turn into a "passe-partout" fund to be used to tackle all sorts of emergencies.

This is simply not possible, as many regions are still lagging behind and they still need these funds, to catch up in terms of digital infrastructure, for instance.

In addition, regional and local leaders also see the risk in increased territorial disparities as a consequence of their missed involvement in the drafting of the National Recovery and Resilience Plans, as the national objectives often do not respond to the real needs on the ground.

It is therefore much needed to revamp our Cohesion Alliance, as no one and no place can be left behind.

I therefore welcome our annual Report and the Resolution which will be adopted tomorrow, which reflects the State of the regions and cities and complements the speech on the Union delivered by the President of the European Commission.
